was followed by Dene hand games,
a mini-Dene dance, and a traditional meal with door-prize draws.

CHIEF POWDER AT OPENING OF RECONCILIATION GARDEN

On Friday, Sept. 29, Chief Powder joined Alberta Premier Danielle Smith and Minister of Indigenous Relations Rick Wilson on the grounds of the provincial legislature for the dedication of a reconciliation garden.

The garden features a large stone monument by Cree sculptor Stewart Steinhauer. The monument is called "Mother Earth Circling: Healing from the residential school experience" and stands as a memorial to the victims and survivors of Canada's residential school system.

was set aside to acknowledge wrongs done to Indigenous communities. It honours the children who never returned home, the survivors, their families, and communities. It is a public recognition of a tragic and painful history, the ongoing impacts of residential schools. It is a vital component of the reconciliation process.

FMFN members and staff were asked to wear orange to honour those children who survived and those who did not come home. They were also encouraged to take the time to learn more about the long-lasting impact of this terrible legacy.

Today, the future is bright for the children of Fort McKay First Nation. But we will never forget the past suffering of our stolen children. We will always honour the past with our belief that Every Child Matters.

The garden is called "Kihciy Maskikiy / Aakaakmotaani" Cree and Blackfoot words meaning "sacred medicine / save many people."

The garden surrounding the monument includes traditional plants and elements to represent the children who did not make it home.

This monument is a direct response to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's 82nd Call to Action.

On Sept. 30, the Day for Truth and Reconciliation, Canadians learn, recognize, and reflect upon the history and ongoing legacy of residential schools, the trauma experienced by many, and the hope for a healthy future. The day emphasizes the ongoing need for reconciliation and building and strengthening relationships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people.

September 30 is also Orange Shirt Day, a day when Canadians wear orange to recognize the ongoing intergenerational effects of residential schools and to acknowledge that "Every Child Matters." The orange shirt symbolizes the stripping away of culture, self-esteem, and freedom from Indigenous children over generations.

Young FMFN drummer in Telus mural

osiah Fabian is a proud member of the Fort McKay First Nation. He is a drummer just like his Dad Bryce He is also the subject of a Truth and Reconciliation mural that will be displayed on over 4000 Telus vehicles nationwide.

And he is only three years old.

This is how Bryce tells the story. "I am the father of a young drummer on the rise and I was contacted by a local artist who wanted to use my son as the subject of a mural for Telus. Josiah Lee Fabian, my youngster, is a Fort McKay First Nations band member and has a great passion for traditional drumming. As a father and a drummer I raised him for the love of round dance and Pow-Wow music. Josiah started drumming when he was one, and since then he has become a staple in the community. He is very talented and we are very proud of him."

"The artist is a long time Fort McMurray resident, Trevor Snook. Trevor is a Mi'kmaq Qalipu First Nations member and it was his idea to ask if he could use Josiah for the mural. I should mention I also have another son, Ace, who is 11 and also a drummer.

I was taught the way of the drum by Fort McKay First Nations member Jimmy Noskiye when I was 9 years old. I taught my boys the way of the drum and I hope they pass it down to their children as well. It makes me proud to know that the culture is around today and that my boys are well involved."

It's a lovely story Bryce. Thank you for sharing it with us. You must be very proud of them. We are too. /

MEMBER SUCCESS STORY

Honouring the Graduates: Monika Wilson

ver the course of the summer we have been recognizing the members of Fort McKay First Nation who graduated in some way or other during the last academic year. From kindergarten kids moving up to 'big' school, grade sixers going to junior high, students starting high school and those who just finished; we tried to honour as many as we could. We are proud of all of them.

There were the adults who went back to finish their schooling, the younger members completing their first degrees, members who did their MBAs or other post-grad studies and those who attained diplomas to advance their careers.

Today we are talking with Monika Wilson about her achievements. For a start, she is the Vice-President, Investments, of Fort McKay Landing, the Fort McKay First Nation private equity fund. "It's a job that I don't believe would have been possible without the MBA I completed last year," she said. "I am very grateful for the support of my colleagues, the education department, and FMFN, and special thanks to my partner Kennedy who doubled down on parental duties so I could study."

This is not the first time Monika has been recognized for her studies. She has a BA in Indigenous studies and anthropology and also graduated from law school as a Juris Doctor, specializing in Aboriginal and Business law, and has been called to the bar in British Columbia. At the time, the Advancement of Aboriginal Women (IAAW) recognised her for her volunteer and academic work at the 2019 Esquao awards.

For those who detect a theme in her degree you're not wrong, and Monika's MBA was in Indigenous Business Leadership. These specializations in First Nations themes makes Monika almost uniquely qualified as an Indigenous business leader.

The Fort McKay First Nation is delighted she has chosen to be such an integral part of our business leadership.

Well done Monika.

The Teddy Bear Fair "If you go down in the woods today, you're sure of a big surprise."

t wasn't quite a picnic, but to carry on with the lyrics from the song, 'every bear that ever there was will gather there for certain because' did seem to be the case at the Teddy Bears Fair held in the Band Hall on August the 16th.

The Fair is designed to take away a child's fear of hospitals and medical procedures by explaining them to the children with the help of everybody's favourite stuffed animals. Local liaison Erin Faichney was delighted with the participation, with over 40 children coming to the fair, as well as youth volunteers and curious adults. "It was a great success," she said.

Sarah Hall, the regional co-ordinator for the event, was full of praise for local organization. "Erin did a wonderful job of planning and organizing, the event location was beautiful clean and open, with lots of space for families to move through the stations. There were plenty of volunteers, the food was delicious and the feedback we received from parents, caregivers and vendor participants was 100% positive. In addition the health center staff were very welcoming and helpful and put on a wonderful event. I am thankful for the opportunity to work in and visit Fort McKay and cannot wait to start planning for next year."

Alberta Indigenous games, celebrating our youth

ort McKay Chief and Council want to once again congratulate our youth members who were involved in the Alberta Indigenous Games in August. These games have become the largest annual Indigenous summer games in in North America, with more than 4000 competitors from over 40 of the 46
First Nation communities in Alberta and nearly 100 from the rest of Canada.

FMFN youth made an impressive showing, including the following:

Alicia Gladue brought home two bronze and one silver medal in the Senior Girls track and field competition, and Gabby Gladue brought home three gold medals for Intermediate Girls. Both girls beat personal bests and are motivated for the 2024 competition.

James Black took part in the Senior Singles Golf Tournament and finished in fourth position. His score of 81 for the round was only two strokes out of medal contention as both the silver and bronze medal winners tied at 79. James has been playing since he was nine years old. "My Dad has always been my biggest fan," he said, "and he was my first coach as well." James and his dad Leonard have been playing golf together since then, and still try to get out on the course as much as possible every summer, "I'm so proud of how far he has come in the sport," said Leonard, "and I'll always be there supporting him."

Tayden Shott is continuing his success in competitive archery and representing the Nation in a positive way. Tayden won gold in the Male Compound Intermediate category for competitors born in 2006 or 2007 and was also honoured with the Spirit of Belonging Award, a very special recognition. Tayden was nominated by the attending parents, athletes, and coaches as a competitor who best represents the traditions of his people and the spirit of the games.

The eight members of Fort McKay's new beach volleyball team took part in Alberta's celebration of Indigenous sports players. Kinley Serafinchan, Maddon Richards-L'Hommecourt. Malibu Chartrand. Chanel Hildebrand-McClure, Callie Harte-Fitzpatrick, Bree Sylvestre, Zyree Sylvestre, and Jermaine Cardinal learned a new sport under coach Athus Silva, hired for the Summer at FMFN and a member of the Keyano College Volleyball team "I was impressed by how quickly the kids improved during the event," said Athus. "I'm happy for this opportunity to coach such a nice team. Next year we are going to come back strong for the tournament."

Leanne Grandjambe won a gold medal for ball hockey. According to her proud dad Randy Grandjambe, "Leanne was asked to play when they saw her at the Calgary Stampede Show-Down, where her team won Bronze. She ended up at the Games as a special invitee, part of the winning U11 team from Lloydminster." Randy is very proud of Leanne and has been with her on the sidelines every step of the way. He has seen all the hard work she has put in pay off on the ice. "I'm beyond proud of how far she has come along as a goalie," said Randy. "That being said, none of this could happen without the commitment of our sponsors, so a huge thank you to BME, Fort McKay Alcor, and of course Fort McKay First Nation."

Congratulations to all the participants, and a special shout out to the recreation team and all the good work they do.

Fort McKay's Beach Volleyball team had a lot of fun at the Alberta Indigenous Games.

Chief's Digest

Below is a digest roundup of some of Chief Raymond Powder's events in August and September on behalf of FMFN.

Treaty 8 Chiefs meet with Health Minister

On the 15th of August, Chief Raymond joined fellow Treaty 8 Chiefs to meet with Alberta's Minister of Health Adrianna LaGrange, and Minister of Indigenous Relations Rick Wilson. Topics discussed were related to important physical and mental wellness issues. An important issue for Fort McKay First Nation is the need to support our Elders as they age in place on our traditional land. Support for our Continuing Care Centre is our top priority.

Fort McKay First Nation also invited the Government of Alberta to support us as we build a Wellness Centre to help our community meet the challenges of maintaining mental and physical health in our northern Alberta community.

In attendance were Chief Roderick Willier of Sucker Creek First Nation, Chief Sheldon Sunshine of Sturgeon Lake First Nation, Alberta Health Minister Adrianna LaGrange, Fort McKay First Nation Chief Raymond Powder, and Alberta Minster of Indigenous Relations Rick Wilson.

Chief promotes ATC Festival

On the 25th of August Chief Raymond joined CTV reporter Kim Wynn in studio to discuss the celebration of Indigenous culture happening at the ATC Cultural Festival. Chief Powder is a member of ATC's Board of Directors. The Festival is a showcase of Indigenous artists and performers from the region's First Nations and Métis communities, along with guest artists, for four days of spectacular arts and cultural programming. The ATC Cultural Festival offers participants engaging and inspiring opportunities, highlighting collaboration, artistic development, mentorship, and cultural revitalization.

Chief Raymond also mentioned that the Festival welcomes all people. It is an important community event and a continuing cultural tourism attraction for Fort McMurray Wood Buffalo.

Chief Powder meets with Premier Smith

Also in August, Chief Powder met with Alberta Premier Danielle Smith to discuss several areas of mutual interest.

The meeting, held in the MacDougall Centre in Calgary, began with a prayer in Cree by Chief Powder.
Also in attendance was FMFN Chief Executive Officer Chris Johnson and, by video, Rick Wilson, Minister of Indigenous Affairs.

"It was a productive meeting," said Chief Powder. "Premier Smith listened carefully to our requests. She and Minister Wilson made positive comments about strengthening the relationship between our Nation and the provincial government."

Among the areas discussed was the Moose Lake Area Management Plan, including the need for a controlled, all-weather road to improve access.

He also discussed FMFN's plan to build a Wellness Centre to help the community meet the challenges of maintaining mental and physical health in a northern Alberta community.

"Fort McKay First Nation is looking forward to continuing our longstanding tradition of working effectively with government in a mutually beneficial relationship," said Chief Powder. "It is our hope that this is the first of many meetings to come as we continue to discuss areas of joint interest."

Keynote speech at Oilsands Trade Show

Chief Raymond Powder was the keynote speaker at the Oilsands Conference and Trade Show luncheon held on Sept. 14 at McDonald Island in Fort McMurray. In a room full of some of Alberta's top business and political leaders, Chief Powder spoke of the history of the region and of Treaty 8 and the responsibilities of the signatories.

Chief Powder emphasised the importance of mutual respect and dialogue which has led to Fort McKay First Nation's successful business partnerships and collaborations. He stressed that business opportunities have led to economic independence that supports increased control of the land and the preservation of important traditions.

Chief Powder delivers the keynote speech at the Oilsands Trade Show.

Among the examples the Chief used to emphasize the value of partnerships with industry was the recent completion of Fort McKay's own Elsie Fabian School, with its emphasis on traditional as well as provincially mandated curriculum. He also cited the value of paved roads within the community and better employment opportunities for First Nations members.

The Oil Sands Conference and Trade Show was held from the 13th to the 14th of September and is the preeminent annual local event in the Oil Sands Industry.

ATC Festival

On the 15th of September Fort McKay Chief Raymond Powder and Councillors Crystal McDonald, David Bouchier, and Bobby Shott were at the official opening of the Festival. The Chief, who serves on the ATC Board, was one of the invited guest speakers. Councillor Melinda Stewart also attended throughout the weekend.

region while also celebrating the unity of the Nations represented by the cohesion of the ATC.

Following the Grand Entry and the opening ceremony, hosted by Fort McKay's own Miranda Beaton and Holly Fortier, the Chiefs and Councillors gathered informally on the banks of the river to have photos taken and to meet and greet friends from each of the five First Nations. They then joined the crowds enjoying the traditional foods available and the arts and crafts on display. Everyone visited the Fort McKay tipi as well.

Other programming highlights throughout the weekend included hand games, music, drumming, and dancing, special event programming for Elders, children, and youth.

Chief Powder participates in WPC panel

Chief Raymond Powder participated in a panel discussion at the World Petroleum Conference held in Calgary over the week of the 17th -21st September.

The panel was titled "Securing benefits for generations to come: Indigenous equity partnerships for Suncor's East Tank Farm and the Northern Courier Pipeline." Also on the panel, held in the international event's Sustainability Pavilion, were Arlene Strom, Chief Sustainability Officer at Suncor, and Dan Gallagher of Mikisew Cree First Nation.

The panelists discussed what were described as "two milestone equity arrangements" for the East Tank Farm and the Northern Courier Pipeline. Both were described as leading examples of Indigenous partnerships that are unprecedented in the Canadian oil and natural gas industry. The Indigenous ownership partners benefit from revenues generated through tank farm leases, competitive tolls, long-term transportation, and terminal services agreements, and fees from operational services.

Chief Powder stressed the importance of building relationships that allow transparency and accountability when making decisions about long-term investments. He also noted that annual distributions from the East Tank Farm are fixed for 25 years, allowing the Nation to have certainty of income. This is different from the profits from its companies which vary year to year based on performance.

Major energy players from around the globe were in Calgary for the five-day conference at the BMO Centre and Stampede Park. The event, which takes place every three years, saw 5,000 delegates. The World Petroleum Congress was last held in Calgary in 2000.

Calgary's Powering The Future Panel

Chief Raymond Powder was part of an expert panel at an event held in Calgary last week by the Alberta Counsel, a private firm specializing in the provincial political landscape.

The panel discussion topic was Powering The Future: The Future of Alberta Energy. Among the strategic issues the panel addressed were the vision and associated impacts for the province's energy future, the net zero agenda for 2050, as well as opportunities in clean and renewable energy.

Other speakers on the six-person panel were the Honorable Brian Jean, Alberta Minister of Energy and Minerals, the Honorable Jim Reiter, Saskatchewan Minister of Energy and Resources, Brad Herald, a senior adviser at the Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers (CAPP), Adam Sweet of Clean Prosperity, and Adam Waterous, CEO of the Waterous Energy Fund.

In his contributions to the discussion, Chief Powder emphasised the importance of mutual respect and dialogue which has led to Fort McKay First Nation's successful government and business collaborations.

Strong season for FMFN ball players

ort McKay Chief and Council congratulate two of our youth, Ethen Asadi-Fabian, and Cruz Fabian, for their sustained baseball success and prowess over the 2023 summer season. The boys, who are cousins and best friends, played on the local representative team, the U11 AA Orange Fort McMurray Oil Giants. Their teamwork extended even further as Ethen, a pitcher, had Cruz as his catcher for part of the season.

They even had their own baseball cards. Cruz said in his that 'getting to play catcher more and having fun with my team' was the best part of the season, while Ethen was happy that everyone was so nice and kind.

"They moved up a tier right before provincials," said Candace Fabian, Cruz's Mom." "They started at the very bottom against teams they had never played before. To then make it to the finals is commendable and we are so, so proud of all of their hard work."

The baseball has also been fun for Candace and her sister-in-law Reba Fabian, Ethen's mother. The two friends have had the chance to spend time together as they've followed the boys through the season, along with their proud dads Brad, Yasir, and Johnny. Reba also had a second job as 'Auntie Reba' the team's official bannock and banana bread supplier.

"They didn't get the last result they were hoping for," said Reba, "but there is absolutely nothing these kids should be ashamed of. They played hard, and 2nd place was a huge achievement."

Team manager Sophie Manuel praised the Fort McKay cousins. "Ethen is a quiet kid, however as a baseball player he is a beast. Ethen loves baseball and has grown so much just in one season. He is eager to try out new positions and is not afraid to ask how to improve. He also had his first grand slam this year. I truly loved cheering on my favorite number 7 and seeing him with his buddies on the field."

And Cruz?

"Cruz is quick on his feet and definitely one to make us giggle on or off the field. He is our little risk-taker and will make other players second guess what play to make, which is an amazing asset to our team. He can play any position, however being the catcher is amongst his greatest skills and nothing gets past him at home plate. His smile is contagious, and he will be missed as he heads up in the division next year - this was his second year in a row on the Orange team - but he is one of those kids that's always happy to see you and greets you with a smile and a hug."

Their coach Jay Manuel also weighed in with his opinion.

"I grew to love those cousins because of their work ethic and determination to get better and learn the game," he said. "Ethan worked really hard on his power, determined to hit for the fence. Not only did he hit his first home run home run over the fence, he became the hardest hitter and most consistent on base of the season. The ball travels almost 280ft when it was hit over the fence and I remember him coming across first base telling me 'Thanks for the tips Coach Jav'. Cruz was also a hard worker. His catching was already outstanding when he joined the team, and his hitting improved because of his will to learn. By midseason Cruz was consistently on base. His bunting skills were excellent and he could advance a runner on demand. Besides the batting and catching he really impressed me in the last two practices we had with his pitching. I told him I would need him to pitch in the provincials. He did really well.

Good Job Ethen and Cruze.

Cruz with proud parents Candace and Brad.
